

Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to force their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary days before the election is a clear example of corporate media giants dictating what the American public sees and hears.

I think it is inappropriate that Sinclair Broadcasting is forcing its stations to air a program that some stations and markets may not want to view. This is squelching my right to fair and balanced reporting during election campaigning.

Sinclair is using public airwaves and therefore should be representing public interest. This course of action shows that Sinclair is not concerned about the constituents in varying markets.

This is just another example of why we need to strengthen media ownership rules and how public airwaves are used during election time to promote a candidate.
